

CARE PACKAGES

Bobby Benson Center encourages legal guardians to send their youth care packages during their youth's stay at the center.

Care packages can include things like hygiene products, leisure time activities (journals, sketch pads, small puzzles or crosswords, colored pencils, books, etc.), pictures, and snacks. You may also reach out to the therapist and ask if there is anything the youth may need or ask if something would be appropriate to send.

All Food items must be unopened, able to fit into a shoe box sized container and cannot include: microwave items (cup/bowl of noodles, mac and cheese, etc.), perishable foods (musubi, fresh fruits, etc.), gum, cough drops, vitamins or nutritional supplements.

If clothing items are sent with care packages, a client inventory will be completed where the youth may swap out items in their closet for the new clothing (which will be assessed for appropriateness and labeled with the youth's initials), swapped out clothing will then be stored in the client's bin in the attic to be sent back with client during home passes.

Please avoid sending items of significant value in care packages or mail. Bobby Benson Center will not be held liable for any lost or damaged items.

Please note that all contents of the care package will be checked prior to the youth receiving their packages by the youth's therapist and operations for inappropriate items, contraband, or anything that maybe harmful or counter productive to the youth's treatment.

You may address all care packages to your youth's name via their therapist at:
